

CNA'S MIDDLE EAST AND AFRICA EXPERTS

BIOGRAPHIES

Dr. Michael Connell is the director of CNA's Iranian Studies Program and CNA's Adversary Analytics Program. He is a Middle East specialist and focuses on political, military and security issues related to Iran and the other Persian Gulf countries.

Pamela Faber is an associate research analyst at CNA. Her research is at the intersection of security and development in conflict and post-conflict regions with a regional focus on Africa and the Middle East.

Zack Gold is an associate research analyst at CNA focused on non-state armed groups. He is an expert in Egyptian security and U.S. democratization, development, and security policy in the Middle East.

Dr. David Knoll is a research analyst at CNA, where he focuses on military innovation, irregular warfare, non-state armed groups, the Middle East and North Africa.

Julia McQuaid is the director of CNA's research program on transnational challenges and global threats including trafficking, smuggling, migration, water stress and violent non-state actors. She is a specialist on the Middle East and Africa, and she focuses on security force assistance, armed groups, international security and maritime security.

Dr. Jonathan Schroden is the director of CNA's Center for Stability and Development and CNA's Special Operations Program. He is an expert in counterterrorism, counterinsurgency, stability operations, operations assessment, Afghanistan, Pakistan and the Middle East.

Chris Steinitz is a research scientist at CNA. He is a Middle East specialist and focuses on strategic, political-military, and social affairs of the region and strategic and operational naval issues.

ABOUT CNA

CNA is a nonprofit research and analysis organization based in Arlington, VA, that analyzes national security and public policy problems. Our highly-educated analysts come from a wide variety of backgrounds and include political and social scientists, statisticians, economists, chemists, physicists, mathematicians and historians.

CONTACT

For media inquiries and requests for interviews, contact:

Christine LaPaille

Director of Communications

(703) 824-2693

lapaillec@cna.org

Whitney Doll

Senior Communications Specialist

(703) 861-1351

dollw@cna.org

